

A Thousand Forests in One Acorn Book Tour in Dallas

Valerie Miles discusses A Thousand Forests in One Acorn, a collection of 28 of the greatest Spanish-language writers of the 20th century.

Composed over many years of conversations and literary adventures throughout the Spanish speaking world, A Thousand Forests in One Acorn, captures the voices of leading writers as they reflect on the particular work they consider closest to their heart, or that best expresses their driving creative obsession. The book serves as a privileged invitation into the private quiet of these great writers' studies, bringing a breathtaking panorama of the moods, colors, and themes that compel the brightest minds in contemporary Spanish language literature today.

Valerie Miles —publisher, author, translator and co-founder of Granta en español— will discuss her inspiration to assemble this formidable anthology and what it was like to interview some of the greatest authors of Spanish-language literature including: Nobel prize winning author Mario Vargas Llosa, Carlos Fuentes, Javier Marías, Ana María Matute, and Enrique Vila Matas, among many others. Additionally, she will also read a few of their selections, bringing their voices and work to life and displaying the range and power of 20th-century Spanish-language literature.

ABOUT VALERIE MILES

Founding co-editor of Granta en español and author of Mil bosques en una bellota (2012), Valerie Miles is a writer, editor and translator who was born in New York and grew up in Pennsylvania, though she's been living in Spain for over 20 years. She has long been devoted to building bridges between the Spanish and English language cultural worlds.
