

'The Female Teachers of the Republic'

The Spanish documentary explores the experiences and ideals of all those pioneers whose project was so savagely destroyed by the Civil War that started in 1936.

Education was one of the greatest social tenets of Spain's Second Republic, with the objective of bringing culture and education to every corner of the country in order to achieve a fairer, more equitable and harmonious society. A group of women, standing for modernity and independence, took these principles to heart, bringing down the walls between male and female students. Winner of this year's Best Documentary Goya Award, Las maestras de la República explores the experiences and ideals of all those pioneers whose project was so savagely destroyed by the Civil War that started in 1936.

THE FEMALE TEACHERS OF THE REPUBLIC

- Original title: Las Maestras de la República. Directed by Pilar Pérez Solano. With Carmen Agulló, Mar del Pozo, Sara Ramos, Hilda Farfante, Laura de Pedro. Spain, 2013, color, documentary, 65 minutes | cert. PG.
- In Spanish with English subtitles. Watch trailer.
- On November 10 at 7 pm. At College of New Rochelle (Romita Auditorium), 29 Castle Pl, New Rochelle, NY 10805. In collaboration with the Westchester Consortium for International Studies (Manhattanville College).
- On November 11 at 3:30 pm. At Manhattan College (Hayden Auditorium), 4513 Manhattan College Parkway, Bronx, NY 10463.

FILM
NEW YORK

Mon, November 10–
Tue, November 11, 2014

Venue

Various venues in New York City
View map

More information

Official website

