

Elena García de la Fuente at The Other Art Fair NY

The Spanish artist's new paintings playfully explore how we behave inside museums.

Elena García de la Fuente's work explores certain codes of behavior inside the museum in a playful manner. The paintings also reflect spaces of quietness and stillness that hold a poetic element, inviting us to meditate and create our own narrative. The artist says: "I'm fascinated by the parallelism created between the moment the viewer faces my paintings and the scenes represented, realizing they have become part of the work and that they're probably being observed by an audience."
