After thirteen years in Spain, Hassan cannot find a job so he decides to undertake the trip back home to Morocco. He invests all his savings in a second hand tractor so as to make for a living in his country, with which he comes back driving to his country. When he arrived in Spain he had nothing, now he returns with his only possession: “El Rayo” (the lightning.)

It is, at the same time, a western and road movie, a document and a simulacrum: an opera that is free and free from all exhibitionism,
