

LA OLA NYC 2018 – Independent Films from Spain

Now in its 4th edition, the annual film showcase brings the best independent contemporary films from Spain to New York from June 15 to June 17.

LA OLA is an annual showcase of the best independent contemporary cinema from Spain, offering a curated selection of critically acclaimed films in Los Angeles, Mexico City and New York City. The 4th Edition of LA OLA takes place in the emblematic Anthology Film Archives, in Manhattan. The showcase is designed to support the international visibility of new Spanish cinema, rarely distributed through mainstream commercial channels. The Spanish filmmaking scene is emerging as one of the most fertile and successful in Europe, with a new generation of filmmakers who are winning great recognition at prestigious international film festivals (such as Locarno, Berlinale, Rotterdam or Cannes). LA OLA represents a rare opportunity to see internationally awarded films in three of the world's cultural capitals. This is a not-to-be-missed event for devotees of contemporary international cinema and a pivotal cultural meeting point for two continents.

David’s dedication to keeping his dream alive reinforces his concern with the education of the children, especially the youngest, Oro. The legend of an ancient and forgotten civilization lies buried beneath a large expanse of dunes. For more than a century, certain travelers have reached this remote and desolate territory looking for the traces of ancient inhabitants, the ruins of a city, or perhaps a sort of lost utopia. Ignorant of these myths and the romantic delusions of archaeologists and adventurers, a few men, barely visible among the sands, today inhabit in solitude that place facing the sea.
