

Mala Rodríguez at BRIC Celebrate Brooklyn! Festival

Mala Rodríguez performs at this year's "BRIC Celebrate Brooklyn! Festival" with Ana Tijoux and Girl Ultra.

For a night filled with Latin female power, Mala Rodríguez brings her fiery rhymes, Ana Tijoux returns to the stage this time with her Chilean-folk inspired project, and Girl Ultra kicks off with sultry R&B.

The Latin Alternative Music Conference returns for its annual showcase with a night of fierce women headlined by the Spanish MC Mala Rodríguez, whose fiery hybrid style marries Flamenco, boom-bap hip-hop, laptop trap, and '70s soul. Rodríguez grew up in Seville, and rose to prominence in the '90s in what was a fertile hip hop scene that included La Gota Que Colma, SFDK, and La Alta Escuela. Her songs, which often address poverty, racism, domestic violence, and female empowerment, have been used in many films, among them Lucía y el Sexo, Y tu Mamá También, and L'Auberge espagnole.

Ana Tijoux, a French-Chilean rapper, presents Roja y Negro which takes her sound to a folkloric direction, and shows off not just her rhyming but also her singing chops. Mariana de Miguel, who performs as Girl Ultra, from Mexico City, takes inspiration from the actresses of Mexico's golden age of film in the 1950s, especially Silvia Pinal.

MUSIC
NEW YORK

Fri, July 13, 2018

Venue

Prospect Park Bandshell, 141 Prospect Park West, Brooklyn, NY 11215

View map

Admission

Free

More information

BRIC

Credits

Organized by BRIC Celebrate Brooklyn! Festival in association with Eventbrite Music Series and the Latin Alternative Music Conference (LAMC).