

Pablo Heras Casado: At Home in the Whole World

Spanish photographer Fernando Sancho presents a series of images that display the work of the conductor Pablo Heras Casado behind the scenes.

Although frozen in time, a picture can provoke the same feeling as music does. Not for nothing, both arts share a common interest: time and space. The exhibition Pablo Heras Casado: At Home in the Whole world is a series of images that display the work of conductor Pablo Heras Casado.

In this body of work, photographer Fernando Sancho combines light with sound to bring the musical language closer to the visual. Fourteen black and white photographs will be shown helping us observe the universe of one of the most internationally consolidated Spanish musicians.

Opening on Thursday, April 4 at 7 pm.
