

Jameson Notodofilmfest

Jameson Notodofilmfest comes to the United States for the first time with an exclusive session screening of the winners from the 14th edition of the festival.

Jameson Notodofilmfest is an online festival of short films lasting three minutes and 30 seconds. It was established in 2001 after an idea from filmmaker Javier Fesser with the vision of supporting young audiovisual producers and breaking the barriers of film production and distribution. Since then, it has received more than 13,000 original films from 38 countries and brought together more than 60 million viewers.

For the first edition of the festival in the United States, the public will be able to enjoy the winners from the 14th edition of the festival.
